

BENSON WEINTRAUB is known in the profession as a “lawyer’s lawyer” based on the depth of his comprehensive expertise in practice in US District Courts, US Courts of Appeals, and the US Supreme Court, particularly with respect to corporate and individual defendant sentencing and post-conviction remedies, including appellate practice of unparalleled effectiveness. He has been practicing law exclusively in the federal courts since 1981; took a leave of absence from active practice in 2004 to serve as a full-time Visiting Professor of Law at Hofstra University School of Law, from which he graduated in 1979 after attending graduate school at the Center for Administration of Justice at The American University, which also conferred a baccalaureate degree upon him in 1974 from its distinguished School of Government & Public Administration.

Mr. Weintraub’s federal practice represents a wide array of legal disciplines ranging from the exclusively complex federal criminal and civil matters: concentrating on allegations of individual and/or corporate health care offenses, financial crimes, i.e., money laundering, fraud, securities violations; conspiracy; internet-based crimes; product substitution (nuclear and NASA components); obstruction of justice; official corruption; large scale narcotics Corporate/individual distribution cases; civil rights violations; constitutional issues; international extradition and multinational treaties; civil litigation and agency representation; and, quashing subpoenas/protective orders.

The Firm provides advice, counsel, and representation to corporations and business entities regarding Compliance Programs, preventive maintenance through the design, implementation, monitoring and training of employees with respect to industry-specific compliance requirements to avoid the investigation or pursuit of civil, regulatory or criminal violations.

Professor Weintraub was appointed by the first Chairman of the US Sentencing Commission to help draft the ‘organizational’ and ‘individual’ Federal Sentencing Guidelines and he is proficient in the requirements of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act, HIPAA, the Stark Act, other business statutes and the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR). This experience enhances the firm’s ability to defend corporations/individuals to mitigate potential financial and other sanctions under the Sentencing Guidelines, particularly if settled by agency agreement. Even if criminally pursued, the Firm will ensure your company’s increased candidacy for a Deferred Prosecution Agreement (DPA).

Benson Weintraub is a highly esteemed academic whose numerous articles have been published or cited in The Yale Law Journal, Federal Sentencing Reporter, Federal Probation (Journal of Admin. Office of US

Courts), Harvard Law Review, by Federal District and Appellate Judges, Notre Dame Law Review, Stanford Journal of Law & Social Policy and myriad other distinguished academic forums. His work has also been republished in a law school text book, "Sentencing, Sanctions, and Corrections." He maintains an AV rating by Martindale Hubble.

Most recently, Mr. Weintraub has been involved with international cases with respect to anti-terrorism, counter-intelligence, and critical national security matters for the benefit of the United States.

Mr. Weintraub has developed a unique and unparalleled manner of practice characterized by tenacity, relentless client dedication, consistently employing the power of optimal engagement in each case.

Mr. Weintraub has been qualified by federal and State Judges as an "expert witness" (Federal/State) in matters relating to sentencing, civil rights actions involving prisoners' rights, and post-conviction remedies, e.g., habeas corpus.
